Song Title	Artist	Album
(We start off the first steamy, hot Friday night of the summer with something sultry...)
Just To Spend Tonight With You	Kim Carnes	View From The House
Be My Friend Tonight	John Prine	Aimless Love
I Came To Dance	Nils Lofgren	Night After Night
Might As Well Dance	Patty Larkin	Angels Running
Come Dancing	The Kinks	State Of Confusion
(Corey Harris released a fine new CD this week, entitled "Daily Bread"...)
Daily Bread	Corey Harris	Daily Bread
Special Rider Blues	Corey Harris	Mississippi To Mali
Kanou	Boubacar Traoré	Mali
Montuno Noreño	Jomed	North African Groove
Angel	Kirsty MacColl	Titanic Days
Koulandian	Kélétigui Diabaté	Mali
She's Leaving Home	The Beatles	Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band
(...That set tied together some common threads in the universal language we call music. Jomed, a Cuban-Algerian band, vividly illustrates the historical links between Spanish and Arabic music. Traoré and Diabaté are well-known names in the western African nation of Mali. Traore is a singer/songwriter and guitarist, and Diabaté is a master player of the balafon, an instrument similar to a xylophone. His musical career dates back to 1960. I wonder if Diabaté, pronounced 'Ja-ba-tay,' was influenced by the Beatles or the other way around?)
(A dark one from Bruce Cockburn starts the next set...)

Spell	Patti Smith	Peace And Noise
You And Me Of The 10,000 Wars	Indigo Girls	Nomads, Indians, Saints

You're Still Standing There	Lucy Kaplansky	Every Single Day

(... We heard a brand new one in that last set from Tracy Bonham. Her new album hits stores on June 21st. I mentioned that Fairport Convention's "In Real Time, '87" was recorded live at the band's annual festival in Cropredy, England. This year's lineup includes a wide range of performers, featuring, among many others, Richard Thompson, Country Joe, Jah Wobble, Beth Nielson Chapman and, of course, Fairport Convention. The festival is a 2 ½ day event on August 11-13, with music from 4-11pm Thursday, and noon to midnight Friday and Saturday. More info is available at www.fairportconvention.com.)
